ANTI-SILVER OPINIONS.
 How Treasury Officials Regard Beck's Resolutions.

WASHINGTON, D. C., January 14th.—There is a great deal of talk about Senator Beck's resolution to pay out the money for bonds in the same proportion in which it is received for customs. The Treasury people consider it a very dangerous proposition, because it is very plausible. It will be much more likely to pass than the Eustis resolution would have been. It is said that if it does pass it will be certain to immediately knock all the premium off the national bonds and unsettle things generally. There are many things connected with this resolution that are not seen on its face. There is a great deal of speculation being indulged in in regard to whether Senator Beck fully understood the matter and just what the effect of the resolution will be. According to the Government report, the receipts at the New York Custom House are as follows: Gold, 35.70 per cent.; silver, 35.70 per cent.; greenbacks, 28.60 per cent. In Senator Beck's resolution there is nothing said about the greenback element of the case. It is not known whether this is purposely left out or not. A Treasury official high in authority when asked the effect of the passage of the Beck resolution, said: "I must have at least two days to think of it." He says to-day that he does not understand it fully yet, but he knows it will be very bad in every way. "If I had bonds of my own I should sell them. As a matter of fact, large sums in bonds have already been thrown on the market. I have been quietly selling a large amount that I held as trustee. I have disposed of more than $50,000, and shall sell them all as fast as possible. They are bound to go down. You noticed how the Eustis resolution caused the bonds to drop on the London market, did you not? There could have been but that one result. It is all nonsense for us to talk about making a currency and a money of our own. We cannot ignore the great money market of the world. What New York is to this country, London is to the world. London says that gold is the standard. It holds everything to that measure, and it is useless for us to buck against it."

The Silver Question in England.

The annual meeting of the International Monetary Standard Association was held in London Friday. Henry H. Gibbs, ex-Governor of the Bank of England, presided, and in an address admitted that the progress of bimetalism was slow in England, but said it was advancing in Germany. He said he believed that the Royal Commission on the depressed condition of trade in Great Britain would report that the present condition of the silver question had an important bearing on the depression. Henry R. Grenfell, Governor of the Bank of England, expressed confidence that the United States Congress would not alter the provisions of the Bland Bill. Bimetallism, Grenfell said, was of vital interest to trade and agriculture. Thomas Sutherland, member of Parliament for Greenock, and Samuel Montague, member of Parliament for the Tower Hamlets, and other gentlemen also delivered addresses. The meeting resolved to form a gold and silver league on a popular basis.

In its "Pen and Scissors" department the Enterprise publishes this: Nevada paid $56,420 for armory rent for its militia in 1885.

We are surprised at the leading paper making a mistake of about $50,000 in such a little matter.

Wall Street is keeping an eye on the President, and has little use for Congress.

The Ohio State Senate has split. Which is the Rump we do not know.

Another man has declined the New York Sub-Treasuryship.

SCATTERING SEEDS.
 H. C.'s Planting Their Annual Crop of Popularity.

Commissioner Colman is finding his way to the hearts of the Congressmen. Heretofore members have been allotted not over 6,000 packages of seed each to distribute among constituents. But, by judicious use of appropriation, Mr. Colman finds himself able to increase the quota to 8,500 packages, with 500 additional packages of flower seeds. It is believed by the Commissioner that he has improved on the qualities and varieties as well as on the amount. The distribution for the country generally is just commencing, but none so soon for the Congressmen. Some of the members have already forwarded to the Department lists of from 2,000 to 3,000 names of constituents. These will be supplied as fast as the clerical force can mail the packages. Such a case as the Congressional allotment being left uncalled for is hardly on record. There are some members from city districts who do not appreciate the influence represented by garden seeds, but these have already been seen by members from rural districts, and the transfers of their surplus seed have been bargained for. The city member who turns over his seed to his colleagues from the country gains the latter's good will and vote for the session.

Governor Perkins' Mission.

The San Francisco Call has received the news from the East that Governor George C. Perkins is in Montreal, Canada, as the representative of the Pacific Coast Steamship Company, of which line Goodall, Perkins & Co. are the agents in the city, to make such arrangements with the Canadian Pacific Railroad as will secure the latter an outlet to San Francisco.

Beyond the above no further information has yet been obtained, but it would seem as if the company's steamers would act as the agency in bringing both freight and passengers to and from San Francisco. The arrangement, if made, will probably not go into effect for some time—not until the further details for operating the Canadian Pacific are consummated.

An Able Congressman Retires.

Representative J. Randolph Tucker has written a letter to his constituents, in which he declines to be a candidate for re-election. Mr. Tucker doubtless has good reasons for the step, but the withdrawal of such a man from public life is to be deplored. He will have been in Congress twelve years on the expiration of his present term; not a long period of service, judged by the standards of other countries, although exceptional in this. Mr. Tucker's training qualifies him for great usefulness as a legislator, and it will be a misfortune if he finds it impossible to devote more of his life to public affairs.

Queen Victoria seems to be violently opposed to Home Rule in Ireland.

Senator Payne writes that he is willing to be investigated.

The opinion is becoming more prevalent than ever that a railroad will cross Nevada some 150 miles south of Elko within three years. We are unable to state what there is tangible that gives strength to the expectation that is apparent on the part of those who profess to know of what they are talking.—Sentinel.

We believe—in fact we know—that a large majority of the voters in this State are honest and unpurchasable, and when made to realize the position in which they are placed through their affiliation with the piece-taking element, we are confident that they will revolt against the sack method.—Times-Review.

THE SENATORIAL SITUATION.
 Genoa Courier, Jan. 22.

Already three Republican and two or three Democratic names have been placed on the great political slate, from among which Nevada electors will be asked to select their representative in the U. S. Senate at the coming election. Two of the Republican candidates, Powning and Wren, are actual residents of the State, and Stewart promises to acquire a residence between now and next November. Fair, thus far the most prominent Democratic candidate, claims a constructive residence, which has been conceded sufficient. With him the proposition is one of dollars and cents—a question of bargain and sale; and so soon as he can determine, through his agents, what the markets offers, his course of action will no doubt be definitely planned. He has the reputation of possessing great financial ability, and nothing more. Should Fair vacate the field, his place will doubtless be filled by some half dozen local candidates, possessing more actual merit and ability, but less money.

Stewart's candidacy is said by his friends to depend upon circumstances. In other words, upon him securing the necessary coin to confront Fair. His enemies suspect that he is but a straw candidate in the interest of Fair, and will occupy the field as Sharon did the last time he was (not) a candidate, to deter home candidates from making themselves too troublesome.

Powning evidently wishes to record himself as a poor man standing on merit and ability for support, and asking further recognition on the ground of being a bona fide resident of the State. His friends say that he possesses lands and some money. Wren comes into the fight on about the same footing as Powning, except that he claims a strong personal backing from the "Great East," and some intricate legal relations which may revert to his advantage.

From the tone of the party organs throughout the State, we judge that a lively skirmish is going on in the ranks of both parties; and while the papers are sounding the notes of alarm, and warning the yeomanry of the Sagebrush State against being corrupted, shrewd politicians and wire pullers are busily engaged weighing the "sacks" of the various candidates, and in searching for more home timber to throw on the market. Of course the race will be open to the latter class for some months to come, and it is not improbable that other local candidates may yet be heard from. For instance Hon. O. C. Stevenson may shy his castor into the ring, which event might defeat all good calculations made at this time; hence, perhaps, all this cautious "feeling around."

The Courier, being published outside the limits of the political hot-bed, has not the peculiar facilities for arriving at the true inwardness of political affairs possessed by some of its contemporaries; but experience prompts these observations:

The people of Nevada are no better or no worse than the people of other States; nor are they any better now than eight or twelve years ago. The old adage of the pole and the persimmon will again be exemplified. The powers that be will carefully feel the public pulse, between now and October, and will see that the right men are nominated on the Legislative tickets in the several counties. The Republicans will be pledged to support one man for U. S. Senator, and the Democrats, another, and it will make but little difference to the people which one is elected. In any event we will be represented at Washington about the same as in years past. There will be no clash between Mackay and Fair. All such matters will be amicably arranged in San Francisco, and the voting part of the business will be merely a formal way of disposing of the question. The fight will be over before the voting begins.

An Ill Bird.

"It is an ill bird that fouls its own nest." The papers of this State which are engaged in painting Nevada as the home of a corrupt and venal people, need not travel far to see the effects of their advertising.—Reno Gazette.

We know of no papers in Nevada, unless it is the Gazette, that is engaged in so painting the State. A number of them have, however, published and commented upon the well known fact that there is a venal class here, large enough to constitute the balance of power, and which often controls the elections. It is to be hoped the effect of "their advertising" will be made apparent next Fall. It is an ill bird that fouls its own nest, and it is a distinctly one that permits others to foul it year after year, without at least protesting against it.—Times-Review.

A Mrs. F. Chasen and a man named Ney who claims to be a grandson of the famous French Marshal, were recently arrested at Santa Rosa, Cal. It is alleged that the woman threatened the life of John A. Paxton, of Hualahua, she claiming that Paxton fraudulently drew from a San Francisco bank $4,000 of her money; that she in Court got judgment for the full amount, which on appeal was reversed by the Supreme Court.

SOME OPEN QUESTIONS.
 The Carson Index remarks:

During the present year a general election will be held in Nevada which will be of more than usual importance. There is a disposition abroad to thoroughly scan the various candidacies, and to examine into the various stewardships. A Governor and full line of State officers, including a Justice of the Supreme Court, are to be elected. In each county, also, a full set of officers is to be chosen, together with the several District Judges. It is inevitable that those who aspire to political leadership and all prominent candidates will be called upon to face the present situation with every attention to strict candor, and a proper submissiveness to the popular will. No present incumbent can expect to be free of the gauntlet, or to repress open inquiry as to his official acts. The highest or lowest of our officials will be under the necessity of explaining his attitude upon questions of State policy and the lawful administration of his trust as to leave no room for the inference that he has unduly magnified his official prerogatives or perverted the powers entrusted to him to base or mischievous ends.

In the line and category of those public questions, which are always open for legitimate and temperate discussion, and which cannot be foreclosed by either of the coordinate branches of the Government, will be, among others, the condition of our irreducible State School Fund. It will be necessary to satisfy those citizens who take special interest in that Congressional endowment of our public school system, why it is that over half a million dollars of that fund has been taken by the State without a dollar of negotiable or marketable securities to answer for it.

The question will also be asked by voters why the serious attempt has been made to subvert that scheme of effective and convenient local judicial government which the makers of our Constitution devised for the good of the people.

The inquiry will be urged whether our courts and judges exemplify the genuine judicial spirit? or, whether hobnobbing among the benchers and political and personal expediences have not measurably taken the place of the fearless and impartial judicial consideration?

The political horizon will be scanned for indications that our State is sometime to be so represented in the National Legislature that this Commonwealth will add something to the ability and patriotism now extant in each branch of Congress.

The Executive Department and Judiciary of our State will be called upon to answer why a seemingly persistent cabal has been allowed to make headway in disturbing the symmetry of our constitutionally organized State Government, through a perversion of fundamental provisions, and the denying of his lawful compensation to the second highest officer?

It will be asked why the few rich taxpayers are allowed to go into court and defend against their assessments, while the great masses of the people must submit to the summary sale of their property in case of inability to pay their taxes promptly?

All these, and many other questions, must be met. We have heretofore, and at our leisure pointed out some of the incongruities, to use a mild term, which result from improvident legislation and mistaken administration in our public affairs. In some cases these mentionings have been resented with warmth. Let it now be understood that no serious mistake can occur in the exercise of public functions and at the same time be excused or hidden from such observation and comment as the occasion warrants. The knowledge that the above as well as other questions of popular interest are likely to be discussed, places every officer whose political record is liable to be directly or remotely affected, upon a fair footing of justice. He will not be taken by surprise or put at an improper disadvantage. He can furthermore make timely exertions to correct any improprieties in governmental affairs for which he is in any sense accountable.

A fair and open discussion of the merits of such question as the foregoing is neither unfair, or an attack upon, the personal integrity of any officer—unless it shall be developed that he is guilty of a stubborn adherence to known error. The people are entitled to know and enforce their rights, and every citizen and every journal is entitled to discuss in a proper manner the acts and attitude of every public officer.

THE OUTLOOK.—Times in Winnemucca are not so brisk and lively as they might be, but, considering the time of the year, when bad weather is always looked for, it is not surprising that there would be but small demand for labor. Nevertheless, taking all in all the year around, our people generally have ample employment. A young man left here a few weeks since to go West, hoping to find more employment than he could get here. Yesterday a letter was received from him, in the western part of the State, in which he says, "Tell the boys in Winnemucca to stay where they are, in the long run they are much better off, as regards work, than any place in this portion of Nevada."—Silver State.

In the Ball Room.—Major—Who is that young lady on the opposite side of the room?
 Widow—That is my daughter. This is her first season. She is not quite nineteen yet.
 Major—Will you introduce me?
 Widow—Certainly. Roah, my dear, this is Maj. Gunn. Major, my daughter Rosa.
 Rosa—Good evening. And so you were in the war?
 Major—Yes, I enlisted immediately after the battle of Bull Run and served until the close.
 Rosa—My poor, dear father was killed in that battle.
 The Major was buried in deep thought.—Detroit Free Press.

AN ANXIOUS HUSBAND.—Mrs. Judge Peterby is a very spare woman. She is excessively thin. A few days ago her husband said:
 "I don't really think that you ought to go out on the streets, Maria."
 "Why not?" she asked.
 "Well you know there is so much danger just now from mad dogs. They will bite at almost anything."
 "But I don't think I am in any more danger than anybody else."
 "Oh yes, you are. Dogs love to gnaw bones."—Texas Siftings.

The young voters of Omsby are reported to have coalesced for opposition to any candidate for office who is over 35 years of age. They should also adopt a resolution advocating the passage of a law, providing for the putting to death of all persons over forty.—Times-Review.

This is the day of all days to call on Henry Morris and have a clean shave or nice hair cut or shampoo. He is still at the Wine House.

The storm of Wednesday night blew off part of the galvanized iron roof of the coal shed at Essex. Two of the pieces struck on the roof of the watchman's house where his family lay sleeping, but did no damage.
A private letter received here Friday night states that Will Webster, Ed. Cochran and Tom Eager, who left here Thursday morning for Aurora, were snow-bound at Hawthorne, the stages not being able to make connection.
Of late some person has been taking books and papers from the E. and M. Library at Wadsworth. The last taken is a blue volume of Shakespeare's works. As all have free access to the reading rooms through courtesy of the association it is hoped this practice will be discontinued, or the Librarian will be compelled to admit none but members, as their by-laws require.
A relief party left Truckee Friday noon to look for G. W. Buxton, the stage driver between Sierraville and Truckee. He left Sierraville Tuesday morning on his regular trip and has not been heard from since. A message was sent to Truckee Wednesday morning inquiring for him. Since then nothing has been heard from that part of the valley as the telegraph wires are down. The rescuing party that went out of Truckee at noon Friday, returned about 10 o'clock in the evening, having found Buxton at Sage Hen Station, he had made one trip to Susanville and back, but could get no further on the way to Truckee. The party that went out were compelled to make part of the way on snowshoes.

Found Guilty.

Ed Emmons and Bob Logan were found guilty Thursday evening at Siil-water of blowing up the dam at the Humboldt sink in June, 1894. Much interest was taken in the case. The jury was out 24 hours.

The late storm is winding up in good shape, although it will probably not end in a 40 days' flood. The rain poured down in torrents yesterday and reports were current nearly every hour of wash-outs on the railroads, destruction to the culverts, detention of trains, and speculations of future dangers. A big wash-out occurred at Camp 28, near Bronco, and all Central Pacific trains were ordered to lay at Reno for orders. The The cattle train of 22 cars was ordered back from Verdi. The west-bound passenger remained here and it was thought it would stay until this morning, although all the men Truckee could furnish were brought down to Bronco. The storm has been a terrific one on the mountains and the ground loosened up, so that a series of slides, etc., are liable.

The Virginia and Truckee track was washed out about a mile south of Reno last evening, and teams had to be sent out from here to bring in the mail and passengers. The train was over an hour late, too, having to feel its way carefully from Carson, the track being covered by water in several places.

The Steamboat ditch broke above Verdi and flooded the town.

The wagon road between Verdi and Reno has been badly damaged. The town bridges at the 25-mile house (Mason's place) have been washed away, and if the rain continues the road will be impassible for some time.

A perfect sea of water is reported at many places on the Truckee Meadows. The northern country is literally flooded.

The Truckee is booming, and to-day promises to be a wild one in this section.

In none of the papers has the name of Judge Edwards been spoken of among the probable candidates for a judgeship. Now, the Tribune is no mouthpiece for Judge Edwards and is by no means advocating his claims to a nomination, either on the old and certainly proper system, or the proposed one, but feels compelled to state that he has been the best judge this district ever had; that his management of judicial affairs has been the most economical the two counties ever knew, and furthermore that his decisions have almost invariably been sustained by the Supreme Court. A pretty good record.—Carson Tribune.

The authoritative statement is made that in the second volume of Blaine's "Twenty years in Congress," soon to be published, the distinguished author takes strong grounds in favor of silver coinage. This is only what might have been expected, but coming at this time it cannot fail to exert a powerful influence on weak kneed Republicans in Congress. Blaine is one of the few American statesmen whose mind is broad enough to take a comprehensive view of the whole country, and he has ever been a steadfast friend of the great West when its interests have been threatened in the halls of Congress.—S. F. Chronicle.

The Carson Appeal quotes a recent Times-Review article on the sack method at elections and says: "The above is theoretically a very good editorial, but we fear that the Times-Review is asking too much of the press of the State. There is no question but that the influence of money in politics is a most pernicious one, but the remedies of the evils as proposed of the Times-Review are inadequate. The idea that the press of the State can rouse the public to such a pitch of indignation that the sack and its bearers will be kicked out of the State is the baldest nonsense. As well might the press of the State combine and attempt to eradicate tobacco smoking and chewing in Nevada. Newspapers cannot change the frailties of mankind."

We do not think it is asking too much of the press of the State, that its influence should be exercised in the suppression of a practice which has brought shame and reproach upon our commonwealth, and attached to it a derivative appellation which is recognized throughout the length and breadth of the land as an not unmerited one. If it not be the duty of an honest press to throw its weight in favor of moral and political reform and against all public abuses, we have been for many years mistaken in regard to its legitimate mission. The press is proverbially a powerful engine for good or evil, and if the united efforts of the newspapers of the State are powerless to effect a change for the better in the matter referred to, it indicates a standard of ability by no means flattering to Nevada journalism; while indisposition to do so is an equal reflection upon its probity. It is perhaps true that newspapers can not wholly "change the frailties of mankind," but they can at least lessen them, and to a considerable extent, prevent personal dishonesty from exercising undue influence in public affairs. If we thought otherwise we should certainly feel but little pride in our profession. The Appeal truly says that "the corruption of money is not a new thing," but its antiquity is no argument for its continuance. The results should rather serve us an incentive to its abolishment. In regard to the Appeal's remarks concerning the events of 1880, we will merely state that the writer of this at the time referred to had no editorial connection with this journal—although if it had been otherwise it would detract nothing from our side of the present argument.

Unless the Federal building is put in course of construction during the coming Summer it is doubtful whether the Democrats of Ormsby county will put any ticket in the field for the Autumn election.—Carson Index.
